

Institute of Intercultural Learning and Action

Invitation to the launch event of a new intercultural project

Thursday 11th May 2017 ~ 7pm

St George's Centre, 60 Great George Street, Leeds LS1 3DL

Interculturalism is an emerging concept and a dynamic process that sees diversity as an advantage in bringing transformative change in the workplace, communities and the city.

The Institute of Intercultural Learning & Action, working in partnership with Leeds Trinity University, is launching an innovative knowledge exchange project involving local community engagement and capacity building through a bespoke developmental Intercultural Leadership & Management course, approved by the Institute of Leadership & Management.

Short presentations will be given by each partner about their roles in the project and the new course.

Buffet food and drinks will be provided from 6.30pm

RSVP to Paul Lancaster: general@codesa.co.uk